International Students Competing in 3MT Develop Key Competencies, Strengthen Career Portfolio

Last week, 14 international students presented their research in the preliminary round of Florida State University's 2017 Three Minute Thesis (3MT™) competition. This competition provides FSU's graduate students with the opportunity to hone their communication and presentation skills by explaining their academic research clearly to a non-specialist audience.

Dr. Judy Devine, senior associate dean of The Graduate School, shared that in addition to gaining these transferable skills, students can use a video of their preliminary round presentation created by FSU's GEOSET Studios for their CV. Note that all students and scholars may use the studio, located in Dirac, to record research presentations for practice, for their friends and family, or for prospective employers.

We congratulate all of the international student participants and recognize the five international students selected to move on to the Finalist Competition. We encourage everyone to attend the Finalist Competition on November 29, 2017, at 6 p.m. at the College of Medicine, Durell Peaden Auditorium. Students who plan to participate in 3MT next year should consider attending to learn what is necessary to make it to the finals.

One 3MT Finalist, MohammadReza Seyedi, civil engineering doctoral candidate from Iran, presented his research titled Rollover Safety Analysis Considering Road-Human-Vehicle Interaction. "I entered this competition to perfect how I share my thesis after graduation," Seyedi said. "When you have a simple, concise explanation for your research it helps a lot."
