SAP Students Complete Program, Prepare for Graduate School

Fifteen international students from FSU's Special Academic Programs (SAP) complete their yearlong program this semester, with most applying for FSU graduate programs in the fields of electrical engineering, public administration, finance, chemical oceanography, and communication.

Senior Jingwen Li, public administration major from Huazhong University of Science and Technology in Wuhan, China, said that the SAP program was of tremendous benefit to her. She is one of 14 students who hope to remain at FSU for graduate school.

"I have learned lots about the American educational system, teaching style, and study style, and gained professional knowledge in my field," Li said. "The [SAP] program is very good and helped me a lot, especially with my English."
