Gender Equity & Social Inclusion With Dr. Ramos-Mattoussi

The Center for Global Engagement's Engage Your World Speaker Series on Wednesday, March 30, 5 - 6:30 p.m. on Zoom. Click below to register.

This presentation will focus on deconstructing accepted frameworks for Gender Equity and Social Inclusion (GESI) that the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) has integrated in the implementation of its projects.

Understanding that equity and inclusion challenges manifest differently in different countries and societies, the speaker will discuss how these efforts towards inclusion have been perceived, accepted, or rejected in diverse contexts.

Dr. Flavia Ramos-Mattoussi is a Senior Research Associate at FSU's Learning Systems Institute and Associate Director of the Center for International Studies in Educational Research and Development \(CISERD\).

She is an international education and development professional with more than 30 years of experience in project design, and evaluation of education initiatives in multicultural, post-conflict and development settings.

Many argue that the war in Ukraine is both a massive human catastrophe and a defining event for world politics in the early 21st century. This event will draw upon the research expertise of our faculty to help the FSU community make meaning of these significant events. We invite the FSU and Tallahassee communities to attend the event and become better equipped to understand the war and to interpret the news.
